Voters favor tax hike—poll

By John Baldwin
Staff Writer

The University is hailing a poll released Monday that shows 69.6 percent of Illinois residents polled support an increase in state income tax to improve the quality of education.

The poll was released by Illinois Issues, a weekly magazine published in Springfield. Sangamon State University's Survey Research Office and the Illinois State Board of Education conducted the poll.

Two other recent polls have yielded similar results. A governor's poll showed 70 percent of those polled supported a tax increase to support higher education, while a Midwest TV poll had 65 percent supporting such a tax increase.

Guyon, students set for more BAS talks

By Antoinette Hayes
Staff Writer

The Black American Studies Association will hold a press conference Wednesday to report on its meeting with President John C. Guyon concerning cuts in the Black American Studies program.

The press conference will be at 1 p.m. in Quigley Hall, room 119.

Guyon said he and members of BASA did not come to any specific conclusion about the status of the BAS program. He said both sides agreed that the program is very important and a budget for the BAS program needs to be developed.

Guyon said he will meet with BASA again and that he did not want to comment on the BAS situation any further until after the next meeting.

However, Luke Tripp, professor in the School of Social Work and BAS coordinator, said, "There are many points of disagreement and unresolved questions."

"We need a material commitment not an idea commitment," Tripp said.

Tripp said members of BASA will meet today to evaluate the meeting, but he did not want to comment any further about the meeting with Guyon until members of BASA discussed their reaction and planned their next step.

This was the first meeting between Guyon and BASA in an attempt to get Guyon to meet three proposals set by BASA.

The three proposals BASA has set are:

— Restoring the number of full-time faculty members in the BAS program to three;

— Providing autonomy for the BAS program by separating it from the School of Social Work;

— Reinstating BAS 100, Introduction to Black American Studies, and BAS 135, The Third World African Model, as part of the general education curriculum.

Training aids the disabled

Local businesses help state agency train employees

Job hunting is tough work for quadriplegic

By Phyllis Coon
Staff Writer

Editor's note: This is the second of three articles on job opportunities for the disabled.

Eighty-seven percent of the disabled people who received job training through the state's Supported Employment Program still are employed, the program director says.

"The people who do leave their jobs are not being fired," Connie Krammer, director of the program at the Carbondale Department of Rehabilitation, said. "They are leaving for personal reasons."

The program has served 14 people since January, Krammer said.

Supported Employment is a state program that trains or retrain disabled people to perform a job. It has existed for two years.

Twelve Carbondale businesses are now participating in the program, Krammer said.

Taco Bell is one company participating in the program. "I've always thought a disabled person can perform any job with a little help," George Sheffield, Taco Bell manager, said.

Taco Bell has six employees who were trained through the program. Sheffield said over 70 people have been hired at the restaurant through the program.

Trainees are paid as regular crew members, he said.

"They are good workers," Sheffield said. "They've stayed a minimum of a year. When they do leave it's because they're going back home or they've grown to a different job level."

Sheffield said he enjoys watching employees grow and move on to other jobs because Taco Bell is just a "stepping stone."

Training some disabled employees is a slow, hard process, Sheffield said.

"In fast food, managers aren't patient," Sheffield said. "It may take twice as long to train these people, but they can become twice as good as other workers."

Sheffield is concerned that some businesses might take advantage of the program because in other companies some of the training positions are not paid positions.

"Businesses could abuse this system," he said. "They could take advantage of free work and after a certain time say they're not going to hire the person."

Krammer said she didn't know of any cases of abuse.

"A majority of the businesses are retaining the workers," Krammer said. "If for some reason they are not kept on, we've been able to place them in a different business where they perform the same job."

Krammer said she assigns each disabled employee a job coach. Job coaches spend most of their time helping trainees with skills other than job performance, such as budgeting their money, she said.

"I try to prepare them for more than one job," Miller said. "I show them how to look in the newspaper for job leads,

Three missing after blast rocks sub

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — The Navy searched Monday for three sailors missing in an explosion and smoky fire that crippled the diesel-powered attack submarine USS Bonefish and forced the crew to abandon ship. Twenty-two crew members were injured, two seriously.

The submarine, which had a crew of 92 on board, was rocked by a blast at 5:30 p.m. CDT Sunday while conducting routine training operations with the aircraft carrier USS John Kennedy and the guided-missile frigate USS Carr about 160 miles east of Cape Canaveral, Fla., said Capt. Brent Baker, an Atlantic Fleet spokesman.

The explosion triggered a fire that forced the crew to abandon ship and transfer to the Carr. The submarine, based in Charleston, S.C., was above water and no smoke could be seen coming from the vessel Monday afternoon.

No one has been aboard the Barbett-class submarine since Sunday because of the possibility toxic fumes are present, and officials said it was unlikely anyone would be able to search the craft for the missing crewmen before today.

"The possibility exists that they are still aboard," said Lt. Cmdr. Aaron Long, a Navy spokesman in Norfolk.

Specially trained crew members from the Charleston-based USS Petrel, a submarine rescue ship, and the Norfolk-based USS Hoist, a salvage vessel, will be the first to board the submarine, officials said. The Petrel arrived Monday afternoon and the Hoist was due Tuesday.

The Petrel has "a line at-

Iran threatens retaliation for any future U.S. attacks

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — Iranian President Ali Khamenei Monday vowed retaliation for any U.S. attacks against Iran's forces in the Persian Gulf, saying Washington had vulnerable spots "throughout the world." Khamenei spoke a day after Iran ignored warnings from President Reagan and attacked the Saudi-owned, Liberian-registered tanker Sea Trader. Khamenei didn't say whether Iran planned to retaliate for attacks by the U.S. last Monday.

Access to U.S. messages sought by Manila

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Defense Secretary Fidel Ramos said Monday the Philippines has demanded access to "secret messages" at U.S. bases in the country — a move that could force the United States to reveal the presence of nuclear weapons. Ramos said the government made the request in current talks in the capital on the future of American military bases in the Philippines. A U.S. spokesman said the United States would have no immediate comment.

PLO, Syria end rift, back uprisings in Israel

DAMASCUS, Syria (UPI) — Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat and Syrian President Hafez Assad met Monday, taking advantage of a "rare chance" to end a five-year rift and support the Palestinian uprising in the Israeli occupied territories, a PLO official said. The meeting was the first since a rift developed between the two leaders five years ago over policy differences on the Arab-Israeli conflict and Syria's support for a PLO rebel group opposed to Arafat's leadership.

Peru frees Chicagoan accused of terrorism

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — Prosecutors dropped all charges against a Chicago woman accused last year of leading a terrorist squad killing of two government officials, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said Monday. Cynthia Stowell McNamara, 39, was released from Lima's top-security Canto Grande prison during the weekend, he said. McNamara, a graduate of Cornell University, was the second foreigner ever charged with belonging to Shining Path, a fanatic Maoist insurgency that has fought an 8-year-old guerrilla war in Peru.

Train crash in Denmark kills 7, injures 71

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (UPI) — A passenger express train derailed at high speed during rush hour near a track repair site Monday, killing at least seven people and injuring 71 in Denmark's worst rail disaster in 21 years. State railroad service officials said the cause of the accident west of the Danish capital was not immediately determined. The derailment occurred near an area of track that was undergoing repairs and train engineers had been instructed to slow down on their approach to the site, a senior state rail official said.

High court to reconsider '76 civil rights case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, voting 5-4, announced Monday that it will reconsider a major 1976 civil rights ruling, provoking four justices to predict that discrimination victims will lose faith in the court's ability to protect them. The rare public airing of discord within the court suggests there may be a growing polarization between its conservative and liberal wings over the direction the court should take on civil rights law.

Walsh heard portions of protected testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Independent prosecutor Lawrence Walsh said Monday he was inadvertently exposed to protected testimony given to Congress last summer by three key figures in the Iran-Contra scandal. But Walsh, who is pursuing criminal cases in the foreign policy scandal, told a pretrial hearing before U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell that he never heard the testimony directly and was exposed only to "fragments."

Victim gets $21.1 million in human rights case

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — In the largest federal civil judgment ever made for human rights abuse, a judge Monday awarded $21.1 million to a man who was tortured on orders of former Argentine Gen. Carlos Suarez Mason during Argentina's "dirty war" of the 1970s. The order by U.S. District Judge Sam Conti also represents the first American civil damage award to any victim of torture or illegal imprisonment during the period of political repression under Argentina's military junta of the 1970s.

Senate to evaluate grievance policy

By Curtis Winston
Staff Writer

Faculty senate President Elaine Alden will step down at the final meeting of the 1987-1988 faculty senate at 1 p.m. today in the Mississippi Room of the Student Center.

The senate also is expected to act on two items: approval of the revised faculty grievance procedures and a resolution to support the formation of a campus chapter of the Illinois Public Interest Research Group.

Nominations and elections for the new faculty senate president, vice president, secretary and committee members also will be held.

Also finishing a term on the senate is governance committee chairman T. Jervis Underwood, a professor in the School of Music.

Under Underwood, the governance committee proposed one of the more controversial items discussed by the senate this semester, the revised faculty grievance procedures.

A major revision of the procedures would move the decision for binding arbitration down from the Board of Trustees level to the University president.

Under the revision, the president would either agree to enter into binding arbitration or the complainant could appeal the president's decision to the Board of Trustees.

Under the current procedure, the complainant may appeal to the Board of Trustees or may jointly agree with the board to arbitrate.

By giving the decision of binding arbitration to the president, grievances would be more likely to be resolved at lower administrative levels, Underwood said.

Other revisions of the grievance policy would make the procedure easier to understand, Underwood said.

Underwood said that President John C. Guyon is in favor of the revised procedure. The Chancellor and the Board of Trustees may also approve of many of the editing changes, he said.

However, the provision on binding arbitration may come under the board's scrutiny, Underwood said.

The only other item on the agenda that calls for action by the faculty senate is a resolution supporting the formation of a campus IPIRG chapter.

At its April 12 meeting, the senate tabled the resolution so its executive council could further study the legality of the proposed $3-per-student waivable fee that would fund IPIRG.

Although IPIRG doesn't need faculty senate endorsement to form a campus chapter, Students for IPIRG representative Trudy Hale has said the consumer watchdog group wants the endorsement to "symbolize support of the whole campus community."

The chancellor and the Board of Trustees would have to approve the fee increase.

Committee urges aid increase

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The Illinois Board of Higher Education should seek full funding of the Monetary Award Program so available money would not have to be rationed and needy students cut from the program, a committee studying student financial aid concludes.

The IBHE is expected to adopt the committee's recommendations at its meeting next week in Galesburg. The committee was appointed by the board and the Illinois State Scholarship Commission.

The number of needy students has grown faster than the state's contribution to college financial aid, the committee reported. Rationing of available funds often results in funds to lower-middle income students being reduced or eliminated, the committee's report said.

Ending rationing would cost the state another $23 million and would make 17,000 more students eligible for the program, the committee said. The program provided nearly 99,000 awards worth $131 million to needy students in 1987.

Acting president gets foundation's top post

By Curtis Winston
Staff Writer

Rex H. Ball, acting president of the SIU Foundation, was named president Monday by the executive committee of the foundation's board of directors.

Ball, 45, was hired Dec. 1 to serve as foundation vice president. He moved into the acting president position Dec. 31, replacing Anne Carman, who resigned Dec. 31 to become vice president for resource development with the Council for Advancement and Support of Education in Washington, D.C.

Ball said the foundation wouldn't be able to provide for the University's operational needs if a tax increase for higher education isn't approved.

"The foundation doesn't have the resources to make up for say, a 4-percent cut," Ball said.

"President (John C.) Guyon has asked that the foundation

Ball said he hopes to increase the foundation's endowment level to $100 million by the year 2000.

help with long-range needs," Ball said. The foundation's endowment fund provides funding for such causes as scholarships, research and visiting professors.

Ball said in a news release he hoped to have at least two more full-time fundraising employees at work by June 1. The foundation usually has three or four fund raisers.

He also said he hopes to increase the foundation's $6 million endowment level to $100 million by the year 2000.

The SIU Foundation is a private, not-for-profit corporation that raises funds in behalf of the University.

VP candidate quits race; goes to another university

A candidate for the position of vice president for academic affairs and research withdrew from consideration for the post Monday.

President John C. Guyon said Albert Karnig, associate vice president for academic affairs at Arizona State University, said he withdrew as a finalist after accepting a position at another university.

Karnig wouldn't say what the other university was or what position he had accepted.

The remaining finalists are John B. Gruber, professor of physics and chemistry at San Jose State University in California; Donald L. Beggs, dean of the college of Education at SIU-C; and Benjamin Shepherd, acting vice president for academic affairs and research.

Bring in Jim Hart, but not for AD job

JIM HART HAS a great deal to offer SIU-C, but not as athletics director.

Hart could be invaluable at fund raising, recruiting and public relations and we hope he gets a chance to do this for SIU-C. But they are not the main duties of an athletics director.

Hart has many qualities that could benefit the athletics department — the greatest of which are his name and fame. He has shown he is a winner, both on the football field as a Saluki quarterback and then with the St. Louis Cardinals, and in the business world with his successful restaurant in St. Louis.

His application for the athletics director position demonstrates his loyalty to SIU-C — after all, he has little to gain from the job outside of satisfying a desire to serve the University. Hart is not a poor man, nor does he seem to have any compelling reason to leave St. Louis. His willingness to uproot his family and move to Carbondale to work for less than $50,000 a year indicates his dedication to SIU-C.

BUT THERE IS no reason to believe Hart has the ability to run a major sports program such as SIU-C's. The mere fact that Hart once was a great athlete and that he now is involved in running a successful restaurant does not qualify him to be athletics director.

The fact that he is Jim Hart, however, does make him a potential boon to SIU-C sports, if he is in the right type of position.

Hart is a proven fund raiser, as shown by his success with fund raising for the St. Louis Heart Association, for which he has been the general campaign chairman since 1974.

His fame in Southern Illinois, indeed his fame throughout the country, would make him a great person to have working for the athletics department. In addition to fund raising, which may be the single most dire need of SIU-C sports at the moment, Hart undoubtedly would help recruiting and other areas of public relations.

But an athletics director must be able to do more than public relations.

THE BEST SOLUTION would be to create a new position expressly for Hart. It could be called something along the lines of "executive director of sports relations" and the salary could be paid by the SIU Foundation.

In this capacity, Hart would work closely with the sports information, fund raising and coaching staffs to coordinate and expand their activities. He would be available for personal appearances at booster functions and the like.

The benefits of this move would be numerous. First, SIU-C would gain the services of Hart. Second, the athletics director position could be filled by someone more qualified to run a major sports program. Finally, Hart would be free to do the things he does best, namely public relations and fund raising.

A NEW POSITION most likely would cost between $50,000 and $100,000 a year, depending upon Hart's salary. But this would be a sound investment for the future of the athletics department. Football will continue to be funded at the cost of SIU-C's more successful minor sports and it would be a terrible shame to see the minor sports cut any further. The only way to save the minor sports is to increase contributions, which Hart undoubtedly would do.

In addition, the position would provide Hart with a chance to get to know the workings of the athletics department and to prove his abilities. This, in turn, would open the door for him to move into an administrative position a few years down the road, if that is his goal.

If Hart really wants nothing more than to help SIU-C sports, he should be very receptive to the idea of a new executive position created expressly for him. If this were to happen, everyone would win.

"MAYBE IT'S TURNING FORTY, BUT I JUST DON'T FEEL LIKE CELEBRATING THIS YEAR."

Castro spreading Red menace, time ripe for U.S. military vaccine

The Western hemisphere is being dominated by the Russian empire.

It began with Russia's domination of Cuba in 1960 and has since used Castro to spread communism overtly in Central and South America. Castro's Cuba also has been responsible for more war crimes outside this hemisphere, in North Africa in particular.

Castro's crimes, just as those of Hitler during World War II, must be codified for adjudication while all evidence is immediately at hand. As evidence of Castro's atrocities mount and is publicized, the overthrow of his communist dictatorship can be accomplished from within Cuba.

This overthrow will require adequate outside support from all remaining free countries interested in restoring democracy, individual freedoms and human rights to the Cuban people.

The length of time necessary to accomplish this and to apprehend Castro for trial by the Cuban people will be commensurate with sincere resolve and determination of the American people and those of other free nations to assist the Cubans in their struggle.

Until this happens, the combined destructive power of the Russian empire will continue to be applied. It will be applied with greater intensity and determination through Castro's Cuba to threaten the security of the United States.

Then a point will be reached when the American people will be unable to protect themselves during threats to their lives, democracy, individual freedoms and human rights by the Russian empire's sponsored violence via Castro's Cuba.

Similarly, as when Hitler's Germany violated international law, Castro's Cuba is violating international law even more today — as the battering ram for worldwide communist conquest. —James B. Hewette, Sr. Carbondale

American citizens ignore ecology rather than working to improve it

As a graduate student in the department of Health Education here at SIU-C, one of my required courses is HED 488-Environmental Dimensions of Health Education.

In this course I learned many startling facts about the serious environmental problems confronting our world. For example:

—As of 1966, almost half of all the oil discovered worldwide had already been burned. In North America, the figure stands at even more dismal four-fifths.

—Current U.S. oil reserves would not even be enough to supply our country for eight years at our present rate of consumption.

—Pollutants from burning fossil fuels cost billions of dollars annually in damage to forests, crops, fisheries, building materials and human health.

—The plastic containers which are becoming increasingly abundant in our "throw away" society are not biodegradable. Those two-liter bottles of Coke will be around for literally thousands of years!

These are but a few of the problems confronting our generation. They clearly show, however, that unless current behaviors change we could be living in a world where water may have to be rationed, along with fuel, and all we will have to show for our great "progress" is plastic garbage littering our land.

Since SIU-C does not require a course in environmental or ecological science, it is up to us learn more by taking classes voluntarily, exploring the literature and just generally becoming concerned about the future of our world.

Previous generations have been concerned about the future (perhaps not enough), but we are the first to be confronted with decisions that may determine whether or not the earth we pass on to our children will even be habitable. —Naomi Jackson, graduate student, health education

Court sentences Demjanjuk

Israeli court says
'Ivan' will hang for war crimes

JERUSALEM (UPI) — An Israeli court, in the first judgment of its kind since 1961, sentenced retired American autoworker John Demjanjuk Monday to be hanged for killing thousands of Jews in World War II as the sadistic Nazi death camp guard "Ivan the Terrible."

Cheers and applause erupted in the packed courtroom when the three-judge panel announced the death penalty. Holocaust survivors and teenagers wept. Some people recited prayers. Others chanted "bravo" and "death" and many sang, "The people of Israel live."

"I am innocent, innocent, innocent, and God is my witness," Demjanjuk told the court in a seven-minute plea to spare him the death sentence. "I have no doubt in my heart, my heart is pure."

His execution will be suspended for at least 45 days while the state's Supreme Court reviews the sentence, as required by law. In addition, the defense said it would appeal his conviction.

"He served as an arch henchman, who with his very own hands, killed tens of thousands, humiliated, degraded, victimized and brutalized, persecuted innocent human beings zealously," said Judge Zvi Tal, reading the court's decision after three hours of deliberation.

"The blood of the victims still cries out to us," Tal said. "It is for this reason that we sentence him to the punishment of death."

The court convicted Demjanjuk, 68, last week of four counts of Nazi war crimes for being the guard Ivan, who used a whip, sword and pistol to jam thousands of people into the gas chambers of the Treblinka death camp and then turned the gas on.

More than 850,000 people, most of them Jews, perished at Treblinka in Nazi-occupied Poland in 1942 and 1943.

Demjanjuk repeatedly argued he was a victim of mistaken identification and counterfeit evidence supplied by the Soviet KGB.

Only one other person has been tried under Israel's war crimes law — Adolf Eichmann, the mastermind of the Nazi plot to exterminate the Jews. He was convicted and sentenced to death in 1961 and hanged in 1962. His body was cremated and his ashes scattered in the Mediterranean Sea, Israel's western border.

Demjanjuk appeared stoic as the verdict was announced after his plea. But his son, John Jr., 22, wept outside the court. His wife and daughters did not attend the sentencing.

Demjanjuk moved to the United States after World War II, became a naturalized citizen and worked for 30 years at a Cleveland auto plant. He was stripped of his U.S. citizenship in 1981 for lying about his past and sent him to Israel for trial five years later.

Tougher ethics law proposed

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Illinois needs an elected board to recommend tougher ethics standards for Illinois public officials and judges, political activist Patrick Quinn said Monday.

Quinn announced a proposed constitutional amendment calling for an ethics review board as part of a push for a constitutional convention in 1990. Voters will have a chance to vote in November whether to call a constitutional convention to rewrite parts of Illinois' Constitution.

His proposal calls for the review board to have seven members elected by voters on a non-partisan basis from the state's Supreme Court districts. The members would submit their recommendations annually to the General Assembly for consideration.

of the College of Liberal Arts, said at a press conference in the Student Center Monday.

Jackson acknowledged that an increase in state income tax doesn't guarantee that education will get all the state support it wants.

"But I think we'll get a significant amount of it," Jackson said.

State Sen. Ralph Dunn, R-Du Quoin, said money from a tax increase can't be earmarked for a specific purpose by the Legislature. Dunn said Gov. James R. Thompson would need to make that kind of commitment.

The poll also showed 73.6 percent of those surveyed said they would be more likely to vote for a state legislator who supported an income tax increase for the improvement of education. Sixteen percent said they would be less likely to vote for such a candidate, while 6 percent said it wouldn't affect their votes.

Jackson said he is working under the assumption that there won't be a tax increase to supplement state support for higher education next year.

"I'm not going to deal you a bunch of woes," Jackson said. "We're not about to collapse. We're not going to close down next year."

"In reality, it means I'm having trouble finding enough English teachers. I have almost no shot of getting enough Computer Science faculty to cover all the courses."

Jackson said the fight for a tax increase has brought all facets of education together for a common cause, which he said benefits education overall.

The University has been working to get a tax increase for higher education, but it is not specifying the increase it is seeking. Local legislators, however, have indicated they would support a 0.5-percent increase in state income tax to supplement funding for higher education.

tached to the Bonfish to keep it from drifting," said Long. "Based on the limited daylight available (Monday), indications are the salvage operation and determination of whether any individuals can go on board will commence (Tuesday) morning at first light."

The fast-frigate USS McCloy also was nearby "searching the area looking for any crew members from the submarine," said Long. Lookouts are stationed on various parts of the ship, he added.

The 22 injured crewmen, all suffering from smoke inhalation, were airlifted to a naval hospital in Jacksonville, Fla. Three were taken from helicopters on stretchers while the remaining 19 were able to walk, Navy officials said.

"I'm sure just about all of them will go" home Tuesday, said Lt. Cmdr. John Griffin, a spokesman for the Naval Medical Command — Southeast Region in Jacksonville.

The remaining 67 sailors were taken by the Carr to Mayport Naval Station, Fla., and were then flown to the Charleston Air Force Base. They arrived shortly after noon under gray, overcast skies.

After a brief reunion with a small but enthusiastic crowd of family and friends, the somber sailors — some in tears — walked to a nearby bus, its exact destination unknown; some left in cars.

"Glad to be back," said one unidentified sailor just before he was whisked away.

The Navy identified the three missing sailors as Lt. Ray Everts Jr., 30, of Naoma, W.Va.; Petty Officer 1st Class Robert Bordelon Jr., 39, of Willis, Texas; and Petty Officer 3rd Class Marshall Lindgren, 21, of Pisgah Forest, N.C.

The two seriously injured crew members were identified as Lt. j.g. Edmund Collins, 34, of Park Forest, Ill. and Petty Officer 1st Class Antone Silvia, 28, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla..

The Bonfish, built in 1959, left Charleston April 16 on the training mission in the Caribbean. The primary function of the submarine, one of only four diesel-powered submarines still used by the Navy, is to simulate Soviet subs during training runs.

Non-nuclear submarines use their diesel engines while on the surface and their quieter electric motors, powered by large batteries, while submerged. The Navy has four diesel subs compared to more than 100 operated by the Soviets.

The explosion was believed to have occurred in the battery compartment, the Navy said.

Students to learn earthquake safety

By Edward Rahe
Staff Writer

Close to 700 elementary, junior and senior high schools in the 28 Southern Illinois counties will take part in activities to mark Earthquake Awareness Week May 1 to 7.

Tom Zimmerman, director of the Illinois Emergency Services and Disaster Agency, said that the reason for the focus on school activities is to educate students about precautions to take when an earthquake occurs. "We hope that the students will pass some of this knowledge on to their parents," Zimmerman said.

A guidebook for developing a school earthquake safety program was made available to Southern Illinois schools by the IESDA. The guidebook includes earthquake preparedness tips and recommendations for an earthquake education curriculum, Zimmerman said.

"Within the next 15 years the chances are 50-50 that an earthquake of a 5.5 magnitude on the Richter scale will occur at the New Madrid seismic zone," Zimmerman said.

The center of the New Madrid seismic zone is approximately 100 miles southwest of Carbondale near New Madrid, Mo.

There's a 7-percent chance of an earthquake with a 6.5

magnitude will occur in the next 15 years, Zimmerman said. "People in Illinois who feel a 6.5 magnitude earthquake won't forget it," he added.

An earthquake of that magnitude could cause poorly constructed buildings to collapse, Zimmerman said.

The most recent earthquake of great magnitude to shake Southern Illinois occurred June 10, 1967. The quake was centered near Lawrenceville, Ind. and measured 5.0 on the Richter scale. Zimmerman said that the Lawrenceville earthquake didn't cause any major damage.

"Earthquakes are nothing to become alarmed about, but they are something we should be prepared for," he added.

People who are indoors when a quake starts, can find protection under heavy furniture or in doorways. Zimmerman emphasized that it is essential to stay away from windows.

People who are outside during an earthquake should move away from buildings and avoid trees and electrical wires, Zimmerman said.

If a person is traveling in a car when an earthquake strikes the best thing to do is to stay in it, he added. "The suspension system in a car will absorb the shock, but the ride will be bumpy," Zimmerman said.

Computer pens case for tax hike

The push for a tax increase will get a helping hand from high technology Friday.

A word processor will be set up on the first floor of the Student Center to produce form letters for students to send to their legislators.

Students need only supply their names and the names of their legislators. Darrell Johnson, Graduate and Professional Student Council president, said.

Stamps will be sold at the tables, Johnson said. This should improve the likelihood that the letters actually will be mailed, he said.

There might be a few versions of the letter, but they all will ask legislators to support a tax increase for education, he said.

If many students take advantage of the form letter campaign, it could be continued until the end of the semester.

The Alumni Services Office is providing the computer and people to staff the table, he said.

how to fill out a job application, what to expect on an interview and what employers expect for their appearance — how they're dressed, what they're hair looks like."

In order to be a job coach at the Holiday Inn, Miller said she had to participate in the motel's two week training program for maids.

"After the two-week program everyone is expected to be able to clean a room in 25 minutes," she said.

Clients are trained an average of three months before they are "job ready," Miller said. Since June 1987, Miller has trained 13 people.

Some of the businesses that participate in the program don't pay trainees, Krammer said.

People trained for the Holiday Inn through the program are not paid, Miller said. If they are hired by the motel, workers are paid according to their productivity, she said.

"If it takes a regular maid a half hour to clean a room and it takes the client an hour, the client is only paid half of the minimum wage," Miller said. "But no one is paid less than half of the minimum wage."

During training, trainees can't do anything that would benefit the employer. They can't do work that would be done by employees, Miller said.

"I simulate everything,"

Miller said.

The Supported Employment program is growing, but not fast enough, Krammer said.

"The program should be serving more people," she said. "But employers don't see the benefits of the program."

Employers are getting quality workers trained through the program, she said.

"Contrary to many people's beliefs, disabled employees are found to take less sick leave than able-bodied employees," Beth Dusch, supervisor at the Illinois Department of Employment Security, said.

Research has found that disabled people also are more loyal to their companies. They stay with the company longer, Dusch said.

Setbacks plentiful as quadriplegic hunts job

By Phyllis Coon
Staff Writer

Greg Gizewski has found many dead ends on his journey toward employment.

Gizewski, a quadriplegic, received bachelors' degrees in art and journalism from SIU-C in 1987. Gizewski said he returned to his home in Orland Hills after graduation because there are more job opportunities in the Chicago area than Southern Illinois, but he still doesn't have a job.

"I expected it would take longer for me to find a job, but not this long," Gizewski said.

He has submitted 60 resumes during his search for a job as an art illustrator or graphic artist. His resume doesn't say he is disabled.

"When I telephone to confirm the interview time, I ask if the building is accessible by wheelchair," Gizewski said. "I guess then they usually figure it out."

He said he has been interviewed about 25 times.

"I believe in my job skills," Gizewski said. "There is no reason an employer shouldn't. At interviews they don't come right out and tell me my disability is the reason I'm not getting hired, but I know it is."

If a company hires a disabled person its employee health insurance premium will go up, he said.

"Companies don't like the insurance they will have to pay," he said. "They don't come out and say that either. I think people with pre-existing physical conditions should be allowed to get the same benefits as others."

Gizewski said many disabled people return to school to learn more skills and increase their marketability.

"I'd love to go back and work with art and design," Gizewski said. "I thought about getting my master's. Computer skills would make me more marketable. If I can't go back to school I hope I can learn the computer on the job."

While he was attending the University, Gizewski said he took advantage of the services offered to disabled students, including Disabled Student Services and the campus office of the Department of Rehabilitation Services.

"Disabled Student Services has really helped me," he said. "The people in the office talked with me on a personal level."

Gizewski said he also participated in fitness and swimming classes offered at the Recreation Center.

"I didn't feel discriminated against at the University," Gizewski said. "Overprotected at times, but that didn't happen very often."

Before graduating Gizewski contacted the University Placement Office in Woody Hall.

"They've sent out resumes for me and still are," he said. "They also helped me with interviewing skills."

Gizewski also is working with employment specialists through the Chicagoland Project With Industry, which is funded by the Department of Rehabilitation Services.

He also is registered with the Targeted Job Tax Credit Program of the Illinois Department of Employment Security. The program offers employers a federal tax credit of 40 percent on the first year of wages paid to disabled employees.

Gizewski also looks checks the Chicago Tribune classified advertising section for job leads.

"None of this is really costing me anything," Gizewski said. "But I am tempted to go to a fee paid employment agency."

Health groups press FDA to regulate some cigarettes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three health groups asked the Food and Drug Administration Monday to regulate all low-tar, low-nicotine cigarettes and a new mock cigarette developed by the R.J. Reynolds Co.

FDA, the American Cancer Society, the American Heart Association and the American Lung Association said the low-tar cigarettes and the new "smokeless nicotine delivery system" should be regulated as drugs under the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act.

Official critical of education

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Education Secretary William Bennett gave a highly critical review of the five-year progress of American public schools Monday, complaining, "Our students know too little, and their command of essential skills is too slight."

Bennett, in a report to be presented to President Reagan on Tuesday, conceded "American education has made some undeniable progress" and schools "have begun the long climb back to reasonable standards." But he stressed, "We are not doing well enough fast enough."

"We are still at risk," Bennett said, using the same phrase that sparked the first wave of education reform when the "Nation At Risk" report was released by the National Commission on Excellence in Education in 1983.

"The absolute level at which our improvements are taking place is unacceptably low. Too many students do not graduate from our high schools and too many of those who do graduate have been poorly educated. Our students know too little and their command of essential skills is too slight."

Communist's bid a boon to Republicans

AMHERST, Mass. (UPI) — An avowed communist's attempt to become president of the University of Massachusetts Student Government Association has become a financial boon to campus conservative groups, students said Monday.

"Donations have never come in stronger," Tony Rudy, executive director of the U-Mass Republican Club, said. The U-Mass Republican Club is among conservative student groups that opposed the election of Jason Rabinowitz and his running mate, Shari Silkoff.

Rabinowitz, a member of the Young Communist League, and Silkoff, who is not a communist, last month were elected co-presidents of the U-Mass Student Government Association, but were then barred from taking office.

Driver dies, teens take control of bus

CENTRAL ISLIP, N.Y. (UPI) — With the driver dead of a heart attack, a 14-year-old boy Monday steered a school bus out of the path of an oncoming car and two classmates jammed their feet on the brake to bring it to a safe halt.

"If the three of us didn't know how to drive, and if we didn't pray to God, we would have all been dead," Jack Florival of Central Islip said.

Police said none of the students were injured.

Florival, a seventh grade student at Ralph G. Reed Junior High School in Central Islip, said the driverless bus moved at a slow rate of speed for nearly a block before the three boys brought it under control.

The driver, Mary Flammer, 48, of Holbrook, who was substituting for the regular operator, was pronounced dead when she was brought to Western Suffolk Community Hospital in Smithtown, Suffolk County Police Inspector John Hayden said.

Florival said he, Sean Mohan, 15; Nigel Boyer, 14; and two teenage girls boarded the Suffolk Transportation Co. bus at about 7:45 a.m.

As the youths walked to the rear of the bus, the driver fell out of the driver's seat and they heard her body hit the floor of the bus.

"As we turned to see what happened, the bus lurched forward and started to move across the road," Florival said.

Alcohol and sex don't mix

Drug can reduce inhibitions, can lead to violence

To Your Health

By Barb Fijolek
Wellness Center

Movies, television, and books often show or imply a close association between the use of alcohol and the sexual experience. Many ads for beer, wine or liquor suggest that drinking will increase romantic attraction or pleasure.

The reputation of alcohol as an aphrodisiac has gained wide acceptance in our culture despite the evidence that alcohol usually decreases sexual performance.

Our society's insistence on portraying drinking positively with sexual activity probably contributes to problems that many people experience with alcohol, with sex, and with achieving intimacy in relationships. Drinking may also increase willingness to engage in "risky" sexual activities which can result in serious or even fatal consequences.

Many researchers believe alcohol has a "disinhibition" effect. Alcohol, as a depressant, may reduce the personality functions that control sexual behavior.

According to this theory, consuming alcohol doesn't increase arousal as the media portrays. Instead it merely reduces the guilt, fear, or anxiety people may have about sex and the consequences of sexual activity.

This lack of inhibition is also responsible for the greater willingness of people to fight or commit other acts of aggression after they have been drinking.

The apparent disinhibition effects of alcohol may lead to severe consequences when drinking is combined with sexual activity. Reduced self-restraint in a sexual situation can result in an unwanted pregnancy, physical or sexual abuse, and a higher risk of sexually transmitted disease, including AIDS.

The Rape Action Committee reported four rapes after last year's Springfest. Alcohol is significantly associated with 41 percent of all assaults nationwide.

These studies and surveys don't necessarily suggest that alcohol use or intoxication creates new patterns of sexual activity or interest.

Instead, research indicates that drinking encourages people to use intoxication as an excuse to engage in sexual behavior normally inhibited by feelings of guilt. Drunkenness makes it "all right" to do certain things. But, of course, guilt feelings often return stronger than ever when the drinker regains sobriety.

Even if physical risks of sexual activity are avoided, use of alcohol can negatively affect social relationships between couples. When alcohol is abused, the individual may experience feelings of shame or low self-worth that interfere with emotions of affection and love.

Ask yourself: Have you found yourself in a situation where you had regrets about sex the morning after drinking the night before? Have you been unable to remember what happened the night before? Have you been unable to perform sexually after drinking? Have you been careless about contraception while under the influence? Have you become involved sexually with partners you would not choose when not drinking?

To Your Health is produced in conjunction with the Wellness Center.

Mall, hospital to sponsor 'making tracks' program

Memorial Hospital of Carbondale and the University Mall are co-sponsoring a formalized walking program, "Making Tracks," for all area residents.

A walking track has been identified at the mall, and the mall will keep convenient hours for walking.

A health education program also will be presented on the fourth Wednesday of every month.

Opening ceremonies for "Making Tracks" will be at 8 a.m. Wednesday at the fountain in the mall. Dr. Philip Hurley, a member of the hospital's orthopedic staff, will discuss "Beginning A Walking Program."

Softball team knows about playing games to the wire

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

When it comes to taking games down to the wire, the softball team has few peers.

The Salukis have played in eight games that went into extra-innings and in 14 games that were decided by one run.

But ask Kay Brechtelsbauer, who has coached the team for 21 years, and she says there's nothing unusual in playing a lot of nail-biters.

"No, not in softball," she said. "It's a sport where you generally play a lot of extra-inning games."

Last season, for instance, the Salukis had seven extra-inning games and 17 one-run games.

"I think the reason is that we play for one run," Brechtelsbauer said. "You'll see a lot of bunts just to move one baserunner over. It's not like that in baseball. In baseball you go for the big inning."

Pitching coach Gary Buckles, who had careers in both baseball and softball, thinks the number of close games is excessive. But he said it reflects the nature of the sport.

"The games are so close," Buckles said. "We'll get a one-run lead, and you think 'all right we can hold them.' But the first thing you know the game's tied again."

"That's why it was necessary for them to add the tie-breaking rule, because there were so many extra-inning games," he said.

Colleges now adhere to the international tie-breaking rule, which has the team at bat place a runner on second base to start the inning if the game still is tied after nine innings.

The pitching rubber also was moved back so that pitchers wouldn't dominate as much.

Part of the sport's appeal to the fans is the guarantee of close games. But not to freshman outfielder Kim Tummins, who said she's endured her share of close encounters.

"I'd rather go out and get a big lead and then hang on," Tummins said. "Getting big leads tends to make things more fun."

—Gary Buckles

With only a week remaining in the regular season, the Salukis have been successful in the clutch. They are 5-3 in extra-inning games and 10-4 in one-run games.

"I've played in a lot of close games," senior pitcher Lisa Peterson said, "but the difference this year is that we're coming back to win. That's good, we're not giving up in the sixth or seventh innings."

Peterson's experience in such situations has paid off. She's 2-1 in extra-inning games and 3-2 in one-run games.

Just last weekend the team demonstrated its ability to come back. Although the Salukis lost to Drake in 10 innings Friday, they scored two runs in the bottom of the seventh to tie the game at 3-3. Twice in the 3-2, 11-inning victory against Northern Iowa, the Salukis were two outs away from being defeated.

"We have a positive mental attitude," Brechtelsbauer said. "That approach to the game makes things happen for us. With a young team like we have, you would think they might get down. But they bounce right back."

Buckles has a solution for avoiding the late-inning jams: "I tell my pitchers that if they'd only pitch more shutouts, we wouldn't have to worry about it."

Rolling Salukis basketball wins 1, loses 1 at Memphis

By Greg Huber
Staff Writer

In its last outing of the spring semester, the Rolling Salukis wheelchair basketball team split two games with Memphis Express at Memphis, Tenn.

SIU-C's eight-person squad, aided by sophomore Chris Ryan's 26-point effort, won the first game Saturday, 55-44, before losing the second game, 47-40.

Memphis Express, which used players from both its A and B teams, kept the Rolling Salukis busy.

"We learned a lot," team captain Dexter Rheume said. "This one guy (John Herrera from the A team), No. 11, could really move exceptionally fast. They had some good shooters, too."

SIU-C was able to keep pace with Memphis in the second game until three minutes remained. Rheume and Herrera had four fouls each and the score was tied at 40 when Rheume fouled out.

Graduate assistant Kathie Kurtz said the loss of Rheume really hurt the Salukis.

"Dexter's our fastest person and Herrera was (Memphis') fastest," she said. "No one else on our team could keep up with him."

Without Dexter's speed to guard Herrera, Memphis added seven unanswered points to capture the win.

The Saluki's Rich Swanson was high scorer in the second game with 12 points and Ryan chipped in 10.

With the latest effort, the Rolling Salukis-Memphis Express series since February, 1987 stands at three games each.

Future plans for the team include practicing this summer, but the next tournament will not be held until fall, Dexter said.

This was the last tournament for Kurtz.

Search committee begins picking top AD candidates

By Sharon Waldo
Staff Writer

The search committee appointed to select athletics director candidates has begun making its first cuts.

Roger E. Robinson, chairman of the committee, said 40 applications were in by the end of the day Friday, the deadline. The committee started work at 5 p.m. Monday to weed out the candidates.

President John C. Guyon has requested the committee hand him two to six candidates' applications. He will take it from there.

Robinson said each person on the committee can nominate up to five candidates.

"If everybody names the same five, then hey we've got our candidates," he said. "If we have 15, then the arguments begin."

Each member of the committee will have a chance to pull for their selections.

Robinson said he would like to have the candidate field by the end of the week. "That's a speculation, but I'll urge them (the committee members) and whip them along."

There is no deadline to notify Guyon of the candidates, but Robinson would like to have the candidates selected as soon as possible. "We're not going to do it just to do it, though," he said.

The target hiring date still is set for mid-May.

Second-place finish suits women's golf coach well

By Steven Welsh
Staff Writer

The women's golf team had its best tournament of the spring season this weekend, finishing second out of eight teams at the Lady Boilermaker Classic in West Lafayette, Ind.

The Salukis finished with a score of 668, 23 strokes behind first-place Minnesota. Purdue also shot 668, but SIU-C took second on the tie-breaking system which compares the fifth player's score for each team.

"We had a great tournament," coach Diane Daugherty said. "I said before the tourney that I wanted to beat Purdue and hopefully finish second, and at the time I didn't realize that Minnesota (a Top 20 team) was going to be there."

Julie Schumaker was the low-scorer for the team, finishing fourth with a 164 total. Tina Kozlowski and Vicki Higgerson each shot 166, tying for sixth.

"Vicki had probably her best tournament ever," Daugherty said.

Rounding off the scoring for the Salukis were Peggy Ellsworth with a 174, Lisa Meritt with a 179 and Lisa Johnson with a 180.

The team again was plagued by the bad weather which has followed them to their last three tournaments.

"The scores are high because we had cold, windy weather both days," Daugherty said. "It affected all the teams' play."

Daugherty was impressed with the team's ability to come back and play well on the back nine after struggling on the front nine.

"We didn't play well on the front nine either day," Daugherty said. "It would've been easy for them to get down on themselves and just give up."

"But they fought back on both days and really showed a lot of competitiveness," she said. "All their hard work is starting to pay off. We look like we're in pretty good shape for the conference championship."

The Gateway Conference Championship will be held May 6-7 in Springfield, Mo.

Men's golf team takes third; Mullican second at Normal

The men's golf team finished third, only five strokes behind champion Illinois State on Monday at the ISU Invitational in Normal.

Coach Lew Hartzog said the squad had a chance to win the tournament after shooting an outstanding 288 Sunday, but the team's top three players faltered in the last round.

"But the kids learned a valuable lesson by it," Hartzog said. "They are upset at themselves. They are all outstanding golfers and this will help us when the conference comes around. They realize they can compete with anyone now."

SIU-C's Jeff Mullican shot a

224 for second behind Illinois State's Jack Frisch. After shooting a 76 and 70 in the first two rounds, Mullican bogeyed on No. 15 to finish with a 78.

Mark Bellas was third at 226, shooting rounds of 78, 69 and 79. Mike Cowen was fifth at 227 with rounds of 77, 72 and 78.

"They all had an opportunity to be the medalist for the meet, but they forgot the team concept," Hartzog said. "We had it all locked up and we beat ourselves."

Bobby Pavelonis shot 229 and Britt Pavelonis 236.

Illinois State had a 298 to win with an overall score of 898. Northern Illinois was second at 899 and SIU-C had a 903.

Triathlon to be held Saturday

By Greg Huber
Staff Writer

Today is the last chance for an organized tuneup for the fifth annual Doc Spackman Memorial Triathlon that will be held Saturday.

A practice swim will be held from 4 to 5 p.m. by the Campus Lake boat dock.

"It's not a quarter mile but we're going to have a course set up," assistant director of student recreation Kathy Hollister said.

"We'll be establishing all new records this year because we changed the (bicycle) course," Hollister said. She added that the new route, 6.2 miles in length, will be safer to use than the old 5-mile course.

The swimming portion will remain a quarter mile in length and the running event around Campus Lake will stay at two miles.

Hollister said more than 135 people had signed up by Monday. Registration is $6 and continues until 4:30 p.m. Friday. Late registration will be allowed at Campus Lake boat dock beginning at 6:30 a.m. Saturday, but the fee will be $10.

The temperature of the water was recorded at 64 degrees last week, Hollister said.

West battling to make ends meet in sports

Staff cuts very likely

By Sharon Waldo
Staff Writer

Interim Athletics Director Charlotte West will present her proposed 1989 fiscal year budget to the administrative staff today.

The proposed budget for FY 1989 is $3,384,947, about $122,000 less than the FY 1988 budget. West said she is planning to prepare a final draft to present to Wednesday.

West said she is "pretty sure" there will be staff reductions. She has estimated that the proposed budget has a salary adjustment that would equal the elimination of up to three full-time staff members.

"We have pared down everywhere else," she said.

West said she would not announce where she plans to make the staff cuts until after she talks to the coaches.

West discussed the budget with President John C. Guyon

AD group begins picking candidates

Monday. Guyon said he considers it a "rational budget."

Guyon also said reductions in staff look very likely. "The budget adds up that way," he said.

West said the greatest loss was in state salaries. More are being moved on to non-state salaries.

"I really don't look at it as women's athletics-men's athletics," West said. "People are doing jobs in both areas."

West said she has been working on the budget for a couple of months and that she does not see any major changes. She said she is eager to hear the reactions from the staff and coaches.

"My goal is that the coaches will see it by Wednesday," West said. "Chances are I'll be working on it (tonight)."

Saluki softball team faces Edwardsville Cougars today

The softball team plays SIU-Edwardsville in a non-conference doubleheader at 3 p.m. today at IAW Field, across from the Recreation Center.

The Salukis are 24-15, one victory shy of the school record for most wins in a single season, set by last year's 25-20 team.

The Salukis swept the Cougars last season, 6-2 and 1-0 in eight innings.

"They are always have good games against us," Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said. "If they are still on a roll, we could be in trouble."

Brechtelsbauer said she would like to use the games to fine-tune her pitching staff for the Gateway Conference tournament. All three hurlers, Lisa Peterson, Lisa Robinson and Traci Furlow could see action.

Team used to taking games to wire

The Salukis broke three individual records and two team records at last weekend's games against Drake and Northern Iowa.

Theresa Smugala got her 47th base hit of the season, breaking the single-season record of 46 by Jenny Shupryt in 1985. Smugala also tied Rhonda Snow's 1985 mark of seven triples in a single season.

Kim Tummins now has 21 walks, breaking Lisa Cuocci's 1982 record of 18.

The team has 38 doubles, one more than in 1985, and 23 triples, two more than in 1985.

Four SIU-C club members 1st in tourney

Four members of the SIU-C Tae Kwon Do Hapkido Club won first-place honors in the 1988 Tae Kwon Do Championship Tournament at the Recreation Center.

Eric Ulner took first Saturday in the 2nd & 3rd Dan Black Belt form division. Ulner also placed third in the Men's Lightweight 2nd & 3rd Dan Black Belt sparring division.

Kathy Pattison won the Women's Intermediate form division and the Women's Advanced sparring division.

Charlie San won the Men's Yellow Belt form division and the Men's Lightweight Yellow Belt sparring division.

Mike Schmick took first in the Men's Lightweight Blue Belt sparring division.

Other members who placed:

Bill Vandiggler placed second in the Men's White Belt form division and the Men's Lightweight White Belt sparring division.

Kelly Rost placed second in the Women's Intermediate form division and third in the Women's Intermediate sparring division.

Mark Wilhelm placed third in the Red, Brown and Purple Belt form division.

James Wuest placed third in the Men's Heavyweight 1st Dan Black Belt sparring division.

Rhoades' starting salary close to what Dorr was making

By Pat Harrison
Student Writer

New head football coach Rick Rhoades' starting salary is only a little less than what ex-head coach Ray Dorr was making when he left to take an assistant coaching job at Southern California.

Dorr, who became coach at SIU-C in January 1984, was making $50,796 when he left in February of this year. Rhoades is making $49,200.

Interim athletics director Charlotte West said that Rhoades' starting salary is not necessarily an indication that the cost of football coaches is going up.

"Salary depends on the qualifications of the person filling the job," she said.

"Salary depends on the qualifications of the person filling the job. Years of experience would be a factor."

—Charlotte West

"Years of experience would be a factor and the past record of performance, and there's always the marketability factor."

"That salary would be comparable for a new coach coming into the Gateway Conference," West said.

Rhoades, 41, came to Southern Illinois after three years as head coach at Troy

State (Ala.) University where he compiled a 28-7-1 record. Last season, his team won the Division II national championship.

Rhoades also served two years as defensive coordinator at Troy State and two years as offensive coordinator at the University of North Alabama. From 1970-80, he was either a head or assistant coach at the high school level. His 1976 Mountain Brook, Ala., High School team won the Class 4A state championship.

The salaries of Rhoades assistants are consistent with the salaries earned by Dorr's assistants.

Jim Tompkins, defensive coordinator and defensive line coach, is the highest paid assistant at $31,008. Fred Riley, offensive coordinator, will be paid $26,950, linebacker coach Jeff McInerney $24,000 and receiver coach Greg McMahon $16,008.

The Saluki assistants not retained were Brad Hewitt, Doug Miller, Mike Michaels and Larry McDaniel. McDaniel, interim head coach until Rhoades was hired, was paid $32,520. Michaels was paid $29,844. Miller and Hewitt both earned $17,004.

Two assistants under Dorr were retained. Rod Sherrill, offensive line coach, is paid $18,420. Jim Bentivoglio, who is an administrative assistant now, is making $18,288.

The salary of the last assistant hired, Stan King, was not available through personnel records because his contract has not yet been forwarded to the personnel department, personnel director Bill Capie said. King is defensive secondary coach.

West would not reveal the salary of any of the coaches. "I don't give out information on coaches' salaries," she said. "I consider it personal information. I know it's public record but I don't think it's appropriate to give out salary information on a personal basis."

All coaches are operating on 12-month contracts, Capie said.
